

I Am Happy To ...

Hi

My podcasts are getting more and more personal as I am sharing information about life and things that have been happening to me. Today is another very personal podcast in which I would like to tell you why I feel happy, and I am going to do that using all forms of the infinitive to show you how they work in actual speech.

So, let's start.

The thing is that whatever might be happening in the world around you, there is always something that can make you feel happy. Here are some things that make me happy.

I am happy to do the work I love.

At some point of my life, I must say quite early, my hobby turned into a job and later I began to work for myself as a freelance teacher. Now that my work is 100% online, I can live anywhere I choose. It is really great!

I am happy to be working on an interesting project now.

I am writing a book now and it is so captivating that I am enjoying every moment of it. Hopefully, the book will be ready at the end of this year.

I am happy to have finished my lockdown.

Now that the parks are open and we can go outside, I take lengthy walks every day and understand how important seemingly small things are.

I am happy to have been making videos for my YouTube channel for several years now.

At the beginning It never occurred to me that so many people would be watching, and soon 3 million views milestone will be reached. It is amazing!

I am happy to be surrounded by wonderful people.

My family and my friends, there is nothing more important than you are.

I am happy to have been given so much support and inspiration from my audience, those who watch my videos, learn from my cards on Instagram or just listening to this podcast. Thank you so much! You are the best!

Now let's look at the forms of the infinitive I have used.

I am happy to do the work I love. "To do"—indefinite active

I am happy to be working on an interesting project now. "To be working"—continuous active

I am happy to have finished my lockdown. “To have finished”—perfect active

I am happy to have been making videos for my YouTube channel for several years now. “To have been making”—perfect continuous active

I am happy to be surrounded by wonderful people. “To be surrounded”—indefinite passive

I am happy to have been given so much support and inspiration from my audience. “To have been given”—perfect passive

This is all for today. I hope you enjoyed this podcast, and if you have any questions or want to leave a comment, please, do it on my website, www.nmodel.net, or you can also do it on the platform you are using to listen to this podcast.

Goodbye!
